The Writing and Society Research Centre warmly invites you to

A Morning with Lyn Hejinian

Wednesday July 9 from 9.30am - 12.30pm

UWS Bankstown, Room 3.G.55

Join the esteemed American poet, essayist and translator LYN HEJINIAN as she reads from her most recent poetry collections including ‘The Book of a Thousand Eyes’ and engages in a lengthy Q&A conversation with listeners.

Lyn Hejinian is a poet, essay writer, translator and previous Guggenheim Fellow who holds a chair in literature at the University of California Berkeley. Among her many published volumes of poetry are Oxota: A Short Russian Novel, The Book of a Thousand Eyes, A Border Comedy and her best-selling My Life. Her essays are collected in The Language of Inquiry; she edited the lastingly influential Poetics Journal with Barrett Watten and currently codirects Atelos Press with Travis Ortiz. She has been involved in numerous literary collaborations including Leningrad, The Grand Piano Series and The Wide Road. Lyn Hejinian is highly esteemed as a founding member of the Language School of Poetry. This event will be chaired by Kate Fagan and includes morning tea and lunch.

Please RSVP to Suzanne Gapps (s.gapps@uws.edu.au) for catering by JUNE 30.
