The 2011 Self Biennial International Conference will be held at Laval University in Quebec City, the capital of the province of Quebec, Canada. The conference is part of a continuing series of meetings that have gained greater visibility in the field of SELF research. Subject matter of interest will include attributions, emotions, expectancies, goals, identity, motivation, passion, values, self-awareness, self-esteem, and self-concept. These topics will be addressed by leading international researchers:

Edward L. Deci
University of Rochester

Herbert W. Marsh
University of Oxford

Jacquelynne Eccles
University of Michigan

Reinhard Pekrun
University of Munich

Andrew J. Elliot
University of Rochester

Robert J. Vallerand
UQAM

Mark Leary
Duke University

This conference should be of interest to researchers, graduate students, and educators from multiple fields of study (child development, education, sports psychology, health, work, etc.).

Why should you attend?

- Keynote addresses by leading international researchers
- Opportunities for international networking
- Breakthroughs in SELF research
- Broad array of themes addressed
- Special events and activities on program
- Quebec City: One of the most visited places in Canada